

Benjamin, veteran TV newsperson, to address faculty

Burton Benjamin, senior fellow at the Gannett Center for Media Studies at Columbia University, will be the distinguished faculty lecturer on Thursday, Oct. 23 at 11:30 a.m. in Hughes Gymnasium.

Benjamin, 68, retired last November as senior executive producer at CBS News. He joined the Gannett Center last spring to conduct a study on fairness in the media leading to a possible book on the subject.

One focus of his study will be the "CBS Reports" broadcast "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception," which received national attention when Gen. William Westmoreland sued CBS. Benjamin conducted the 1982 internal CBS News inquiry regarding preparation of that broadcast.

Benjamin joined CBS in 1957 and became involved in all areas of the network's programming over the next 29 years. From 1975-78 he was executive producer of the "CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite." He then served as CBS vice president/director of news until 1981 when he became executive producer of hard news broadcasts. His most recent assignments included several editions of "CBS Reports," among them "Hiroshima Plus 40 Years . . . and Still Counting," "Terrorism: War in the Shadows," "Honor, Duty and a War Called Vietnam," and "High Tech: Dream or Nightmare?"

Seal retains basic historical elements in new design noting university status

Gallaudet's seal, like the institution it represents, has undergone several changes.

The original seal, created in 1864 by members of the Board of Directors of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf, contained three languages within a circular border: English, Syriac and the manual alphabet.

In the center of the seal appeared an open Bible with the word ephphatha written in Syriac across the pages. The word, which means "be opened," is part of a story about a deaf man told in the Book of Mark, chapter 7, verses 32 to 37. Ephphatha was repeated in the fingerspelling which encircled the Bible. The shield below depicted 13 stars and stripes representing the 13 original states.

The Board of Directors originally decided to have the name of the institution inscribed in the outer ring of the seal using the Latin Academia Columbianiana. But Amos Kendall, one of the institution's founders and a member of the board, was vehemently opposed to including Latin on the seal. He claimed that Latin had fallen into disuse except as a means to study English and that including it would be "pretentious." The board, after heated discussion, agreed to use "Columbia Institution."

Although the College was chartered by an act of Congress in 1864, it was known as the collegiate division of the Columbia Institution, and the seal bearing that name continued to be used for 90 years.

In 1954, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed a bill dropping the CI name and authorizing the name Gallaudet College. The seal then bore the name of the College plus the date 1857, which signified the founding of the institution as a corporate body.

Later seals switched to the Latin names—Collegium Gallaudetensis—and then back to the English for a time. A seal designed in the early 1980s featured a hexagonal shape in both the inner and outer rings, plus the date 1864 for the College's charter.

The current seal (above) includes the Latin words Universitas Gallaudetensis, the word ephphatha in Syriac across the open Bible and in fingerspelling, the shield with stars and stripes and an additional 13 stars in the outer ring. The year 1864 is retained in the seal as the university's official beginning date.

Lee boosts Gallaudet on radio, TV

President Jerry C. Lee is appearing on a variety of TV and radio programs this month as part of the College's most intensive one-month public awareness campaign in history.

The appearances are geared to educating the general public about Gallaudet and the forthcoming change to university status, including major University Week activities.

This week Dr. Lee is scheduled to appear on both WRC-TV's "News Forum" and WDCA-TV's "Eye on Washington." At noon this Thursday

Gallaudet steps up to full membership in area consortium

With the designation of university status for Gallaudet comes another benefit: Gallaudet becomes a full member of the Consortium of Universities of the Washington Metropolitan Area.

Until now, Gallaudet has been an associate member of the consortium participating in only a portion of the programs available. Gallaudet joins American University, Catholic University, George Washington University, Georgetown University, Howard University, the University of the District of Columbia and the University of Maryland at College Park as full members of the consortium. Gallaudet will have a vote in the executive committee and be involved in the consortium's new library project.

Provost Catherine Ingold and head librarian John Day represented Gallaudet at a Sept. 25 planning meeting on the formation of the consortium library, which will be the third largest academic library in the country. The Rev. John P. Whalen, executive director of the consortium, said that Harvard University's library contains 11 million volumes in its data base, while Yale University's has 8 million. The new consortium library will have 7 million volumes in its data base, more than the 5 to 6 million volumes contained in the University of Illinois' library data base.

"Gallaudet will have unlimited access to that library," Dr. Ingold said in an address to Gallaudet faculty on Sept. 29. "This significantly expands our ability to develop programs to support research."

Whalen said that the library project "is one that will be realized in a matter of years, not decades." Plans call for the formation of the data base to begin early in January. The single collection

he will be interviewed by Jim DeYoung on the WNTR-AM radio show "Washington Live."

Next week Dr. Lee will be interviewed by Steve Ember on the WGMS-AM/FM program "Dialogue" (Oct. 20 at 2:55 p.m.) and by Karen Leggett on WMAL-AM's "News at Noon" (Oct. 21 at 12:10 p.m.).

The president has already appeared on radio talk shows of three other stations—WKYS-FM, WAMU-FM and WASH-FM.

Special rules set for cars Oct. 24

On-campus parking will be prohibited for staff and faculty on Friday, Oct. 24 at the following locations: College Hall, Hall Memorial Building, the Field House and metered spaces. Students are also not allowed to park at the Field House lot or metered spaces that day.

Any vehicles found in violation of the parking prohibition will be towed from those locations at the owner's expense. Department of Safety and Security (DOSS) information reveals that the last towing company hired by Gallaudet charged $90 per vehicle for towing; a new firm is on contract for University Week.

Free parking will be available at RFK Stadium Lot No. 3 on Friday, Oct. 24 from 5:30 a.m. to 7 p.m., and on Saturday, Oct. 25, beginning at 9 a.m. Lot No. 3 is on the west side of the stadium and the north side of East Capitol Street.

Gallaudet will provide shuttle bus service from Lot No. 3 every 20 minutes both days at the following times: On Friday from 8 to 10 a.m., and back to RFK Stadium immediately following the convocation; and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon, and back to the stadium immediately after the football game. Riders will be dropped off at the Field House both days.

Additional shuttle bus service is being provided for the gala on Saturday evening. A bus will pick up riders between the Ely Center and the Field House at 8:30 p.m., and will return to campus at the end of the gala.

Regular shuttle bus service will be in operation to and from Union Station and Eastern Market on Friday.

Captain Charles Jones of DOSS said, "We strongly urge everyone to comply with the parking rules for University Week. This is a one-time occasion, and it would be a shame to spoil it for yourself. We suggest that during the week, it would be appropriate for people to use car pooling or public transportation."

Dr. Andrew Gianino (left), a research associate at the University of Massachusetts, discusses a videotape with Dr. Kay Meadow-Orlans, senior research scientist in the Center for Studies in Education and Human Development (CSEHD). Dr. Gianino was appointed by Gallaudet as a Beltone scholar under a grant from the Beltone Institute for Hearing Research. He is collecting data for a CSEHD infancy research project.

Announcements

The paintings of Regina O. Hughes, a 1918 Gallaudet graduate, will be on exhibit in "Ole Jim" throughout University Week. Hughes is a botanical illustrator at the Smithsonian Institution. Some of the paintings in the exhibit will be on sale; Hughes is contributing half of the proceeds to the Alumni House Fund.

Texas sculptor/painter Danville Chadbourne and a group of Gallaudet students will create a lasting tribute to Gallaudet in the form of a totemic sculpture of clay and wood beginning Monday, Oct. 20 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Ely Center.

"You'd Be Surprised," a 1926 film starring the deaf actor Granville Redmond, will provide the cornerstone for a discussion on deaf actors and deaf issues in TV and film on Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Ely Center Auditorium. Call x5115 for reservations.

Faculty, staff and students who are under parking privilege suspension or parking decal revocation because of 8 or more violation points have one more chance to attend a Driver Safety Seminar for point reduction on Saturday, Oct. 18 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Ely Center multipurpose room. Final registration for "E" and "F" zones will be postponed until Oct. 20 in order to provide this final opportunity for point reduction. For more information, call Sgt. Bernard Holt at DOSS, x5445.

The first of two Simultaneous Method evaluation sessions for this academic year are scheduled as follows: expressive evaluations, Oct. 27 to 31, and receptive evaluations, Nov. 3 to 6. Sign-up sheets are posted in the Faculty Orientation Office, LRC US-21. Faculty members are advised to reserve a 20-30 minute slot for the expressive portion and a 2-hour slot for the receptive portion. The next evaluations will be in February. For more information, call Roger Beach, x4518.

The Gallaudet College Alumni Association (GCAA) will honor Pauline "Polly" Peikoff at a dinner on Oct. 23 at 5 p.m. in "Ole Jim." The dinner is open to alumni and friends of Polly and her husband Dave. The evening will feature a program after the dinner. Reservations are due Oct. 17. For more information, call Mary Anne Pugin, x5066 (TDD) or x5060 (V).

The Washington Area Consortium of Universities and Colleges is sponsoring a Graduate and Professional School Fair on Oct. 21 and 22 from 2 to 7 p.m. at George Washington University. The event will be on the third floor of the Marvin Center, 21st and H Streets NW, near the Foggy Bottom Metro station. The fair will feature representatives from graduate school programs around the country. All Gallaudet students, faculty and staff are invited to attend. For more information, call Leah Cox at the Career Center, x5270.

The campus community is invited to an Oct. 16 reception for Susan Watson, who recently resigned as coordinator of the Visitors Center. Watson plans to reside in Miami. The reception will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. in "Ole Jim."

The Western Pennsylvania School for the Deaf (WPSD) in Pittsburgh will host the Eastern Regional Conference for Educators of the Hearing Impaired this Friday, Oct. 17, sponsored by Pre-College Programs. Three people from Gallaudet and six each from MSSD and KDES are scheduled to make presentations. The conference theme is "Kaleidoscope of Strategies: Working Together for Deaf Students."

Persons interested in giving presentations or short courses at the joint meeting of the Convention of American Instructors of the Deaf and the Conference of Educational Administrators Serving the Deaf must submit abstracts by Nov. 1. The theme of the conference, to be held June 28 to July 2, 1987 at the New Mexico School for the Deaf, is "Uniting at the Crossroads."

Gallaudet gains full membership of card catalogs of all consortium members will have "important academic consequences," Whalen said.

The library will provide a commonly owned storage facility for the universities' libraries to jointly purchase and shelve important but little-used books. The consortium's current delivery system for interlibrary loans will be "beefed up," offering daily service to consortium members.

President Jerry C. Lee said, "I am extremely pleased that Gallaudet has been accorded full membership in the consortium. This status will enable us to participate more fully in consortium deliberations and activities and will provide us with greater opportunities for our academic community."

Because Gallaudet is now a full member of the consortium, members of the Gallaudet community will be able to participate in programs not accessible to associate members, such as hands-on research projects at the Army Research Institute in Behavioral and Social Sciences. Associate members of the consortium are Mount Vernon College, Trinity College and Marymount College. Marymount recently became a university and will apply for full membership.

The most important change inherent in full membership in the consortium, said Whalen, is that "Gallaudet is now a participant in the planning process of the library project and other programs, not just an observer. The executive committee, of which Gallaudet is now a member, determines when the consortium will speak on issues of higher education in the metropolitan area."

Students prepare to sign at RFK

Five Gallaudet students will have more on their minds than whether the Redskins will beat the St. Louis Cardinals at RFK Stadium next Sunday.

Freshmen Michelle Banks, Jeffrey Bravin and Estella Bustamante, and sophomores Donna McGee and Byron Dunkle will be at the stadium, but they'll be concentrating on signing the national anthem at the opening of that game. After that, they can relax.

The five were selected from approximately 80 students who auditioned on campus for the honor of representing Gallaudet at the game. The initial audition in mid-September narrowed the field to 27 students, from which the five were selected in a second try-out. Also chosen were four understudies: freshman Stephanie Gemmill and seniors Marta Belsky, Karen Dyer and Michelle Smith.

Serving on the selection committee were Gil Eastman, Bernard Bragg, Dr. Lottie Riekehof, Dr. Diane Hottendorf and Will Madsen. Students were required to sign the first four lines of the anthem, and committee members looked for signing and expressive skills.

The five students and four understudies are practicing one hour daily. When they perform on Sunday—kicking off not only the Redskins game but also University Week—they will be accompanied by a vocalist.

Gallaudet College is an equal opportunity employer/education institution. Programs and services offered by Gallaudet College receive substantial financial support from the U.S. Department of Education.

Dr. Lee's Forum back on the air

"President Lee's Forum," a monthly television program hosted by President Jerry C. Lee, has its "season premiere" this week with Dr. Lee's "State of Gallaudet Report."

"Watching Channel 33 during the workday is an appropriate use of time for staff and faculty and is the same as taking the time to read a memo from me," said Dr. Lee. "It helps everyone become more aware of issues relating to deafness and Gallaudet."

Broadcasting of the program will continue through University Week on Channel 33 of the campus cable system. The program is produced by the Department of Television, Film and Photography.

Enrollment increases 3.7% over fall 1985

A total of 2,206 students are enrolled in undergraduate, graduate, preparatory and nondegree-credit sign language programs this fall, representing a 3.7 percent increase over fall 1985 figures.

Regular undergraduate enrollment, excluding associate degree and special students, rose nearly 13 percent. Leading the way was an almost 40 percent increase in the senior class (187 senior this fall compared with 134 last year).

The freshman class continues to comprise more than half of all undergraduate enrollment. There are 741 freshmen out of a total undergraduate population of 1,406.

The number of graduate students increased from 380 to 396. The latter figure includes 219 master's and 27 doctoral candidates.

The largest decrease in enrollment involved NDC sign language students. The 151 students enrolled this fall represent a drop of more than 28 percent from one year ago.

Readers suggest unusual acronyms

When Gallaudet College becomes Gallaudet University On Oct. 24, can new acronyms be far behind? Some possibilities suggested by readers (all in good humor, of course):

GUMBO: Gallaudet University Management and Business Office.

GUNS: Gallaudet University News Service.

GUFFAW: Gallaudet University Federal Fund Auditing Wing.

GULP: Gallaudet University Libation Providers.

GUILT: Gallaudet University Institute for Licentious Translators.

GUAVA: Gallaudet University Alumni Volunteer Association.

GUESS: Gallaudet University Educational Support Services.

GURU: Gallaudet University Research Unit.

GUACAMOLE: Gallaudet University Association to Consume Avocados and Munch Other Luscious Edibles.

INTRIGUE: Institute on Nefarious and Transient Romantic Involvements of Gallaudet University Educators.

In addition, if Pre-College Programs becomes Pre-University Programs (PUP), employees may not escape being called "Puppies." At Gallaudet University Press (GUP) it would be "Guppies."

Leibovitz lectures here next Monday and will critique student photo exhibit

Photographer Annie Leibovitz, recognized as one of the most exceptional portraitists of her generation, will be on campus on Monday, Oct. 20 to present a lecture and slide show of her work, meet with the Gallaudet community and offer a critique of students' photographs.

A reception will be held at 9:15 a.m. in Ely Auditorium, followed by Leibovitz's talk and slide show at 10 a.m. and a question and answer period. The lecture will be sign-interpreted.

Leibovitz will then conduct a walk-through critique of photographs that appeared in the student photography exhibit last spring. Her visit will conclude with an invitation-only luncheon.

While attending the San Francisco Art Institute, Leibovitz so impressed Rolling Stone editor Jan Wenner that he commissioned her to accompany him during an interview with John Lennon. The interview resulted in Leibovitz's first cover photo for Rolling Stone, and by 1973 she was the publication's chief photographer.

Her work has been featured in such publications as Time, Life, New York Times Magazine, Playboy, Esquire, Vogue and Vanity Fair. She has photographed numerous album covers for artists such as the Rolling Stones, Bruce Springsteen and Cyndi Lauper. Leibovitz has also created posters for the World Cup Federation, special stills for several films and advertising for corporations.

Her provocative portraits include those of the Kennedy clan, Sam Shepard, Woody Allen, Mike Ditka, Ed Koch and Cher. Among her best known photographs are those of John Lennon and Yoko Ono, taken just before Lennon's death in 1980.

Her first book, "Annie Leibovitz: Photographs," published in 1983, was sold out by December of that year and then reprinted.

Gallaudet, University of Puerto Rico to establish new cooperative program

Yet another activity is being planned for University Week: the signing of a formal agreement between Gallaudet and the University of Puerto Rico (UPR) to establish the Caribbean Educational Resource Center at UPR's Rio Piedras campus.

Representatives of UPR will meet with officials of Gallaudet to formally inaugurate a program that will provide programs and services for hearing-impaired and educationally delayed children and youth in the Caribbean region.

UPR will provide the office space, personnel and resources for the center. Gallaudet has committed funds for the initial start-up of the center and will also provide visiting teams of instructors to support the programs.

Gilbert Delgado, Gallaudet's international development officer, recently returned from a trip to Puerto Rico to finalize plans for the center. Dr. Delgado authorized an agreement document signed by representatives of both institutions specifying that the new center will provide "courses, in-service training, technical assistance, instructional materials (design/adaptation/translation), and demonstrations for students, teachers, parents and other professional personnel who work with disabled persons."

Goals and priorities for the center will be based on recommendations of a regionally representative advisory board.

and of staff at both institutions. Dr. Delgado said the center staff will begin organizing activities as soon as the formal signing of agreement document is completed during University Week.

For the past six years, Gallaudet has provided support for a similar program at the University of Costa Rica. A resource and training center there serves deaf children, youth and adults of Central American countries.

The Oct. 11 Gallaudet football game against St. Peter's will be televised Monday from 2-4:30 p.m. and nightly at 7 p.m. through Thursday.

Bison look ahead to Brooklyn game

The Gallaudet football team is scheduled to depart this Thursday for two nights in the Big Apple—including a Friday night encounter on the Brooklyn side of the bridge. The Bison face the Brooklyn College Kingsmen under the lights in a first-ever matchup between the two Division III schools.

Hundreds of Gallaudet graduates and other Bison supporters from schools for deaf students in the New York area are expected to attend the 8 p.m. game.

The Kingsmen are a high scoring team with a wide open offense called "run and shoot." "We will have to score a lot of points to win," said Coach Bob Westermann, "because they can put a lot of points on the board."

The game will be the Bison's first on artificial turf.

Gallaudet dropped below .500 for the second time this season with its 29-13 loss to Anne Arundel on Oct. 4. The balanced running and passing attack of the Pioneers ran the score to 29-0 before the Bison scored two fourth-period TDs on short runs by sophomore tailback Pat Hutson and sophomore fullback Robert Wilkins.

PCD topics include employment, access

The President's Council on Deafness (PCD), formerly the Deafness Related Concerns Council (DRCC), held its first open meeting under the new name on Oct. 2.

Agenda topics included council representatives' meeting with President Jerry C. Lee on Sept. 23, deaf employment and communication access.

Barbara Kannapell is the PCD chair. Representatives are Yerker Andersson, college faculty; Nancy Bloch, college staff; Marianne Sasseen, KDES; Florence Vold, Northwest Campus; and Rae Johnson, MSSD.

A report by the PDC's Task Force on Communication Access report is available from Barbara Kannapell, Learning Center, LE 54; or Nancy Bloch, Career Center, Ely 207.

The next open meeting of the PCD will be Dec. 4.

Corrections

The correct phone number for the Department of Athletics is x5603. Due to incorrect information provided to On the Green, a wrong number was listed in the Sept. 29 OTG announcements section. Callers who want the Physical Education Department should dial x5591—not the Department of Athletics.

Marin Allen of the Department of TV, Film and Photography received a Presidential Award for a project entitled "The Segregation of Black Deaf Children in the United States: The Kenneth Miller/Ruby Fry Story." Her name was inadvertently dropped from a list of award winners provided to On the Green and published in the Sept. 29 issue.

In a photo on page 3 of the Oct. 6 OTG, Todd Tobin was incorrectly identified as John Raffaldt.

Gallaudet's Margaret Nixon (9) rushes for a goal as top-scorer Donna Hanley (15) provides support in a women's field hockey scrimmage against Washington College last month. The team's record through Oct. 6 was 2-5. According to Coach Anita Marchitelli, the team is steadily improving and already doing better than last year at this time.

Among Ourselves

Marita Danek, director of the Rehabilitation Counseling Program, presented "Bridging the Gap Between the Producers and Consumers of Knowledge" at a recent National Education Forum on "Achieving Excellence in Developing Human Resources," held in Denver. Danek also testified before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services on behalf of FY 1987 appropriations for rehabilitation programs.

Donald Peterson, associate professor of chemistry, and his wife, Ruth, received John of Beverley medals at the July convention of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, held in Indianapolis. The medals, presented by the Mill Neck Foundation of Long Island, N.Y., are given "in recognition of significant contributions made to those who live in the world of silence."

Max and Della Fitz-Gerald, who served in various capacities at Gallaudet for 14 years, left last month to establish a clinic and consulting firm in Orlando, Fla. Most recently, the Fitz-Geralds worked under a health education grant at MSSD.

Cindy Fernandes, coordinator of the Assistive Devices Center in the Department of Audiology, recently presented a workshop on assistive devices at the Calvert Pines Senior Center, Prince Frederick, Md. The workshop was sponsored by the Calvert County Office on Aging.

Jack Gannon, executive director of Alumni Relations and Advancement, recently gave a workshop on "Deaf Heritage" at the Spartanburg Area consortium for the Hearing Impaired in South Carolina. Gannon also spoke at a local meeting of Gallaudet alumni and at the South Carolina School for the Deaf and the Blind (SCSDB). His trip was coordinated by the Gallaudet Regional Center at Flagler College in St. Augustine, Fla., and cosponsored by SCSDB, the South Carolina Association of the Deaf, Converse College and the Spartanburg County Hearing Handicapped Program.

Victorian Periodicals Review recently featured an article by Bruce White of the English Department on Elbert Hubbard's periodical The Philistine. Based on a lecture given in Toronto to the Research Society for Victorian Periodicals, the article explores Hubbard's influence on literature and journalism from 1895 to 1915.

'Ole Jim' to host 5 U-Week events

The Alumni House ("Ole Jim") will be one busy place during University Week—particularly on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

On Thursday, Oct. 23, the Office of Alumni Relations and Advancement (AR/A) will sponsor a party honoring Polly Peikoff, who recently retired from AR/A after 20 years of service. The evening's events will begin with a cocktail hour at 5 p.m., followed by dinner. The dinner (reservations required) will be followed by a special presentations ceremony.

Because of the special dinner, there will be no Happy Hour on Oct. 23.

On Friday, Oct. 24, the Gallaudet University Alumni Association (GUAA) will hold a pre-game celebration from 8 p.m. until midnight for anyone age 21 or older. Admission is free. There will be a cash bar and free munchies. For those who want to dance, "Ole Jim" has many new disco tapes. Happy Hour will be from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

On Saturday, Oct. 25, A/RA will host a Golden and Silver Anniversary breakfast from 8 to 10 a.m. for the classes of 1936 and 1961. Reservations are required. A GUAA-sponsored post-game bash will follow the football game.

On Saturday night, T. H. Wave, with Henry Grau as disk jockey, will provide music from 8 p.m. until midnight. Admission is $5 per person—$4 for anyone wearing a Gallaudet shirt, button or cap. Hors d'oeuvres will be provided. Those attending must be at least 21 years old.
